

Advanced Premium Contracts

Add premium towards cash contracts in exchange for potential pricing on deferred volume

Benefits

- Bunge structures are traded off-exchange and embedded in grain delivery cash contracts
- Quoting is transparent for dependable accuracy and swift execution
- Offers a duration to modify active positions as markets change before final pricing versus traditional contracts

- Volume sold and delivered should be taken into consideration beforehand to prevent being oversold with a potential sale on deferred volume

Risk Profile

- Flexible option appropriate for all market views
- Provides transparency of total volume pricing potential
- Low-risk pricing alternative to set an offer for premium that can be adjusted later on

Advanced Premium Contracts

The Advanced Premium is commonly used in the majority of market cycles as a complimentary way of getting paid now for leaving an open order in the market on deferred volume. This value adding tool offers low-risk simplicity to support producers navigating markets by offsetting nearby lower basis or futures. The potential sale takes place on a set expiration date while continuing to offer flexible features like early exit or rolling for extended maturity before expiration. The customization and flexibility of Advanced Premiums make it one of Bunge's most widely utilized pricing tools year-round.
